History:

The institute was founded in 2001 by Viktor Semenov and other founders who were the graduates of the training program of Grete Leutz. Viktor Semenov became the director of the Institute.

By 2015 the Institute was known under the name of the Institute of Group Psychotherapy and Social Projection. The change of the name was made due to the necessity to define Psychodrama and Psychological Counseling as the main directions of Institute activity. The aim of the institute is to incorporate psychodramatic method in the culture of psychological therapy.

From 2001 to this time there were 14 training groups.

The trainers of the Institute organize therapeutic groups (work with trauma, genosociodrama or the history of the family, bibliodrama, fairytale therapy by means of psychodrama, work with symbolic reality etc). Demonstration sessions were organized in more than 50 cities in Russia, Ukraine, Kazakhstan and Latvia.

Since the time of its establishment, the Institute has been cooperating with the other institutes in Russia, such as the Institute of Psychodrama and Role Training (director Elena Lopukhina), the Moscow Institute of Gestalt and Psychodrama (director Nifont Dolgoplov), and the Institute of Group and Family Psychology and Psychotherapy

(director of Psychodrama is Ekaterina Mikhaylova). The Institute is a co-founder of the Federation of Training Psychodramatic Institutes in Russia. The director is a co-founder of the Association of Psychodrama in Russia and was elected its President.
