

EDITORIAL

The past three years have been marked by trying times demanding us to live intensively in the face of traumatic events — from the global pandemic to the fratricidal war in Ukraine. In this crazy world, psychodrama is like a lighthouse, that in the darkness of the storm of hatred, destruction, rapes and murders gives people a direction towards humanity, cooperation, support and love. FEPTO supports this path with all its resources. Our organization not only actively participates in providing help and support to those whose mental health was threatened by the long-term pandemic crisis, but also soothes the Ukrainian people who are suffering from the war that the government of the Russian Federation is waging against them. All this brought many challenges to FEPTO and created a need for restructuring, and quick adaptation to new situations. Literally, pushing the limits of endurance. Deep internal motivation to succeed, exceptional professional competence and the sincere cooperation of psychodramatists were all key factors in successfully realized projects.

The assistance that FEPTO members provide to the Ukrainian people consists of seminars, lessons, webinars, training, coaching, group and individual psychotherapy meetings, supervision in online and face-to-face settings. Immense thanks to all our members who found time and energy and a lot of love in their hearts to participate in all of this. All this helps to restore our faith in humanity and love as an immense force that can conquer everything.

Mimi & Yorgos